Like no we can't pull dates out of our crystal ball and anything post release will be dictated by streaming

I can't stand him. He's so pompous. A men's retreat during release, is he crazy?! And being off the grid for the summer because he's just so overworked… like calm down. You're not that important and nobody gives a shit how hard your life is.

And what covers he's doing? At this point, none. Because he's not a star.

If he doesn't capitalize on this time and retreats he's going to be forgotten.

He doesn't need a retreat. He needs to be humbled. When this movie flops, he's going to try to blame every person around him for it

He may fire us because even if we put together an amazing campaign, it's not going to change the fact that he's so unlikable and unrealistic as a leading man, there's no chemistry with him and Blake, you and I both know that she will be resistant to promote this movie, and press will be reluctant to do anything with Justin without Blake being part of it. So there. Those are my thoughts.
